Fr. Tomasz's Weekly Reflection

An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth is a well-known proverb contained in the ancient Hammurabi code. Jesus in today's Gospel reminds us that it is impossible to live by this principle and in the same time to accept the command to love our enemies and to forgive the injuries. It is true that sometimes the inflicted evil is so great that even if someone tries to forgive, when they meet the enemy, emotional tension arises and causes one to be unable to experience the slightest positive reaction. Sometimes even body response to the presence of the enemy: nervous tics, sweating hands and trembling voice indicate how great harm was done.

Each of us was hurt at some point in our lives by others. Some of the injuries require medical intervention: bandage, sutures, plaster or even surgery. Often, however, our wounds are spiritual and no ordinary doctor can help. It's about the injuries that destroy our lives. In a world bearing the effects of the original sin, forgiveness is a vaccine against the spread of the plague of evil. It is worth realizing that the lack of forgiveness wreaks havoc on anyone who carries a grudge. Hence, willingly forgiving injuries is an expression of goodness not only towards others, but also towards oneself. Forgiving is simply being good to yourself!

Violence, lack of understanding, hostility, the departure of a friend - these are just few examples of painful situations, and the wounds that are caused by them require an internal healing. It is certainly difficult not to commit sins at all or to never hurt others. It is also difficult but possible, however, to forgive and overcome the divisions that separate us. That is what true - though difficult - love is about.

Jesus, directing his word to us, wants to defend us from ourselves. Many times if someone was offended by another, their whole life is spent on planning how to "return the favor", how to humiliate his enemy in front of others, so that they know how their offense was felt in the first place. In such situations one does nothing else but to think about the hurt, and this attitude destroys, does not allow to sleep, work, love, enjoy life.

As Christians, we are not only called to spread the good news, but also to fight the evil. Fighting evil is not done by responding to it with the same force, but with an opposite direction. Fighting evil is demanding that the effects of wrongdoings be repaired. Let's look into our hearts and our relationships and if there are injuries or wounds done by others - let's forgive. Let us remember that forgiveness is not a feeling, but a decision that every one of us is capable of making.

The attitude of forgiveness is difficult for us, which is why we are looking for strengthening it through the Eucharist, by an encounter with forgiving Jesus. Practice makes perfect. So it's worth trying! He still calls us: be perfect, just as your heavenly Father is perfect.

Everyday STEWARDSHIP

What do you own and what owns you? You can find this question asked many times in several different contexts. Are you looking to find some kind of financial freedom? How about trying to live simply in a complex world? Has a mountain of stuff invaded your home garage to the point where parking a car inside is only a dream?

The early Church practiced a radical form of fellowship called koinonia, which literally means "sharing in common." Those who had homes and other major possessions would sell them and then place the proceeds in the care of the Apostles to be shared with the entire community. People focus mostly on the fact that people sold all their possessions for the benefit of the community. However the real point is the action that occurred after every selling: the proceeds were given to Church authority, in essence, to God first. I wasn't just selling my house and then giving the money to random people. My offering was to God and it was for the Apostles (those who personally encountered Jesus and now represented him on earth) to decide how to divide up the wealth.

Why do such a thing? One could say it was so that no one wanted for anything. If we push that thinking too far, as some in history have done, we can create a system that takes from some to give to others. Nothing was taken from anyone in that first Christian community. It was freely given. And perhaps the reason why people were moved to do so lies at the heart of stewardship: because all we have already belongs to God anyway.
