STEWARDSHIP CORNER

Trusting in God's Generosity

Jesus offers a hard lesson regarding wealth and possessions in today's Gospel. The rich man whom he encountered could not part with his possessions as a condition to becoming a disciple of Jesus. Would our response be the same as the rich man? Do we place our trust in our money and possessions instead of trusting in God's generosity? Do we seek security in our possessions? Good stewards realize that their possessions must not possess them, lest those possessions block their relationship with the Lord.

Next meeting is Monday October 18th

Raising a Good Steward: Teaching Your Daughter About Money

In a world of instant gratification and keeping up with the latest trends, it may be tempting for your girl to spend all of her allowance money or part-time job paycheck on impractical things.

The challenge is deciding the difference between purchases that are beneficial versus ones that are superficial.

Help your daughter understand the value of saving her money for the future. Encourage her to take a pause before making a purchase to determine its true worth. Both what we buy and why we buy is a direct reflection of what's in our hearts. That's why the apostle Matthew tells us to store up our treasures in heaven and not just here on earth.

Money is a beautiful blessing from God—not just for ourselves—but for our family and those in need around us! God just wants his girls to spend her money wisely.

Fr. Tomasz's Weekly Reflection

The Old Testament does not know the idea of voluntary poverty. On the contrary, long life, numerous offspring and material well-being are regarded as signs of God's blessing. Therefore, wealth is received gratefully, and without a reason to dismiss it as something that might turn a person away from God. It is true that the Old Testament also mentions the "poor of Yahweh:" such a person is one who has no earthly protection, and therefore is under the special protection of God. However, even in this case, there is no encouragement to consciously get rid of material goods.

The Old Testament rebukes the rich for misusing their wealth, because the possession of material goods resulted in numerous obligations: the duty of fair treatment of servants and fair payment for work. Equally strongly emphasized was the duty to support the poor, especially widows, orphans and strangers. So wealth was good and blessed because it was a great opportunity to serve God, precisely through the exercise of justice and mercy. This is why the disciples, hearing about the camel and the eye of the needle, were surprised and asked: Then who can be saved? Jesus, while talking to a rich young man and then talking to his disciples, pointed to an ideal they did not know nor understand – the ideal of voluntary poverty, undertaken out of love for God and people. Christianity proclaims not only the obligation to share one's goods with those in need, resulting from the elementary love of one's neighbor, but it also praises detachment from material possessions, which is best realized in religious life, through the vow of poverty.

However, this ideal of poverty was never treated as a universal requirement, obligatory for all believers. It was undertaken voluntarily by a few. Nor was this ideal ever understood as seeking complete equality in the possession of material goods, nor as challenging the very principle of private ownership. Therefore, it is completely different from the communist slogans, which negate private property, and see as an ideal a community in which everyone receives the same amount of food, clothing, and space for housing. Christians knew from the start that poverty and wealth was not a matter of mathematics: it is not a matter of simply limiting the amount of material goods you have and distributing them evenly. There will always be poorer and richer, and the wealth differences are not intrinsically evil.

Voluntary material poverty is a way to purify one's heart. So if it is practiced without love, it can do more harm than good. This purification is achieved through the shedding of a different wealth. The wealth that puts all its hope in personal skills, knowledge and other immaterial resources. A person with this attitude feels rich and strong. They don't need God. Their life is based on personal abilities. On the other hand, the poor knows that he or she cannot rely on themselves, that they are in constant need of God's help, and reliance on Him.

St. Andrew Dinner at St. Peter

With Fr. Ryan O'Neal

Vocations Director at St. John Vianney Seminary and also our former Parochial Vicar!

For men in high school and older who want to learn more about discernment,
the seminary, and the priesthood.

November 15th, 2021 in the Parish Hall

*In the Eastern Church, St. Andrew is known as the Protokletos ("First Called"), as John the Baptist invited him to follow Jesus. After doing so, Andrew then brought his brother Simon Peter to the Lord.
(John 1:38-41)*

Similarly, it is not enough for priests to be satisfied with their own priestly vocations. Like Andrew, the Lord is asking priests to bring others to Him so that they may discover their vocations as well.
