STEWARDSHIP CORNER

Being Good Stewards of Our Gifts

In today's second reading, Saint Paul makes a list of gifts dispensed to members of the Christian community by the Holy Spirit. Each gift bestowed has a specific purpose for the person for whom it is intended: wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, mighty deeds, prophecy, discernment, tongues, and interpretation. Good stewards know these gifts are not meant to be kept hidden by the recipient but to be shared with the community and beyond. As we begin a new year, let us reflect on the gift the Holy Spirit has given to each of us. Do we recognize this gift? How was it intended that we use this gift? Are we being good stewards of this gift?

Fr. Tomasz's Weekly Reflection

It always amazes me when I remind myself that the word that is used in Polish to address the wedding reception is the word 'Joy'. Jesus attending the wedding at Cana reminds us that our God is a God of joy, not sorrow. He created within us this longing, the desire for joy. The problem is that this yearning, from early childhood, is exposed to the danger of disfiguration or misinterpretation what joy actually is. This makes us close in on ourselves, cut ourselves off from true desires, take away our feelings, stop believing in happiness, suspect every joy of being a trick of mind.

Fewer and fewer people believe in successful marriages, more and more often the word 'family,' rather than with love, is associated with psychological torture. People close themselves to the experience of joy; instead they look for cheering up in chemical substances, in workaholism, in attention-consuming activities, even in acts of charity. We fall victims to the temptations of masturbation and gluttony, sex and the Internet, removing ourselves from this world by getting drunk or entering the virtual world where we take revenge on generated monsters in video games. And all that because the suppressed longing for a real joy has been blocked by our culture brainwashed minds, and replaced by hedonistic imitations.

The substitutes for love, tenderness, joy, faithfulness and friendship are at our fingertips. But all of this only depressingly deepens the sadness. Many mothers give their children food instead of affection, many fathers give their children money instead of a time for conversation. Many young people have nothing to offer their partners but sex. Many people prefer to watch on-screen dramas for hours to forget their own real-life misery. We dissociate ourselves from feelings. We don't want to experience this spiritual hunger and want, so we stuff ourselves with anything that will deceive us even for a moment, even if it will never be able to satisfy us.

What do we really long after? Happiness, tenderness, love, conversation, cheering up? Who can give us this? Is it even possible? Only Jesus remedies the emptiness of the stone jars. There were six of them. Not an accidental number. Remember that it was the sixth day that man was created. To taste true happiness, we must do whatever Jesus says – in line with Mary's exhortation: Do whatever he tells you. The wedding at Cana is not only the event that begins the series of miracles of Jesus, but also a symbol of the vocation of man to experience an endless and inexhaustible joy.

It was the third day and there was no wine: in an hour or two the wedding could end in a very unpleasant way. Until then the head waiter pretended that everything was fine. He kept an appearance of being in control of the situation. There are many people who are doomed to keeping a false smile, hiding behind it the disintegration of their lives. Their jovial attitude has become a curtain that covers despair and hopelessness, disenchantment and disappointment. The more they party, the greater the fear of loneliness; the more they seek the sensual gratification and intoxication, the more robbed their spirit becomes.

True joy is not without but within us – in discovering in our hearts the will of God and doing it – whatever He tells us. But who will believe it takes to fill the stone jars with water to get the best wine out of them?
